GOVERNOR REFUSES TO SAVE LACEY ADAMS

NEGRO TO GIVE LIFE FOR CRIME

Report Circulated in Columbus That Board Recommended Mercy

WHITE IN REFUSAL

Developments of Thursday Bring Stay Hope

BULLETIN

Governor George White, late this afternoon, refused to intervene in the electrocution of Lacey Adams, 38, colored, who is scheduled to begin his walk to the death chair shortly after 7 p. m. today.

The announcement followed a conference of more than an hour in the governor's office in which the state board of paroles and pardons was present. It was unofficially reported that the board recommended mercy.

Emmitt L. Crist, prosecuting attorney, was in the statehouse ready to enter a protest should a stay be granted but it was not necessary that he do so.

Adams is to be the third to die, Walker Brown and Henry Loudermilk being executed last Friday.

DEVELOPMENTS SEEN

Swift developments in official circles late Thursday gave authorities here a belief that the negro had a chance of winning a stay or of gaining commutation of sentence.

After hearing strong evidence Wednesday that Adams was "forced" into the murder of John Kidney, aged Pickaway-co farmer, last Dec 10, S. P Dunkle, special investigator for the governor, interviewed Adams personally in his cell late Thursday afternoon.

Dunkle then again conferred with the parole board, which conducted Wednesday's clemency hearing, and together they reached a decision as to what to tell Governor White about the case.

Dunkle's conference with the negro set a precedent in the handling of pleas for clemency. Ordinarily only attorneys and friends are heard on behalf of the convicted men. Dunkle, it was believed, wanted to make a check of stories Adams is said to have told a friend and a negro pastor in his cell Wednesday.

Adams, in the interviews with his friends, charged that he was coerced into participating in the Kidney robbery and murder by Henry Loudermilk and Walker Brown.

ROUTED FROM BED

Laudermilk, it was charged, routed Adams from bed with a revolver and forced him to accompany the robbery party.

Detectives, hastily summoned to the bank, said the robbery bore all the earmarks of a job of a New York gang which had systematically mulcted metropolitan financial houses of more than $1,000,000 in the past year.

Plan Resubmission Plank; Delegates Leave Singing Praises Of Hoover.

COLUMBUS, June 10.— Singing the praises of Herbert Hoover and the prohibition resubmission plank, the vanguard of Ohio delegates set out today for the national Republican convention which opens Tuesday at Chicago.

Convinced that the president will be renominated in the first ballot and that the swing away from the 18th amendment will assure a victory over the Democrats in November, delegates and alternates were reported leaving from scattered Ohio cities all day today.

GLEE CLUB TO GO

State Chairman Ed. D. Schorr will leave tonight Other delegates will follow tomorrow. The famous Republican Glee Club of Columbus will leave Monday, armed with a new group of anti-Democratic songs to be sung throughout the convention.

"The report that a resubmission plank has been drafted by the party leaders has greatly pleased our Ohio delegates," Schorr said today, while making plans to start to Chicago. "The majority of the Ohioans are in favor of resubmission They are delighted at this turn of affairs."

Besides Walter Brown and Simeon Fess, Ohio's most prominent representatives, are the nine other delegates-at-large Joseph R Nutt of Cleveland, James R Garfield of Cleveland, State Senator Robert A Taft of Cincinnati, Wilma Sinclair Levan of Steubenville Katherine Kennedy Brown of Dayton, Gertrude L Hanna of Cleveland Gertrude Jones of Findlay and E W Edwards of Cincinnati

REPEAL PLANK GAINING FAVOR OF DELEGATES

Indiana Votes Wet; Many Spokesmen Already at Chicago Meeting Scene.

CHICAGO, June 10 —Demand for a clear-cut repeal plank in the Republican national platform attained snow-ball momentum today as incoming delegates swelled the rising tide of revolt against prohibition.

A fornight ago it was debatable whether the administration would approve, or the convention next week adopt, a tepid resubmission plank Today it is debatable whether the convention next week will be satisfied with anything less than a straight-out repeal irrespective of the administration wishes

INDIANA WET

Indiana Republicans went wet with a bang yesterday, and few things could have made a greater impression upon the Republican leaders gathering here for next week's show. Not only has Indiana been dry since 1916, but it still has on its statute books the most drastic of all state enforcement laws. The fact that the Indiana convention yesterday would not be satisfied with an equivocal submission plank, but adopted a straight-out repeal plank, coupled with a recommendation for repeal of the fanatical Wright act, made deep impression upon the national leaders gathering in Chicago

By formal party action, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois are now added to the wet Republican states of the east in a demand that the party, as a party, take positive action on the prohibition issue Under the circumstances, the confident prediction of the wets that next week will see President Hoover renominated on a wet platform seemed more than justified. Apparently they have the votes to make good their prediction

FLEISCHER SURPRISES THE POLICE

Sought in every part of the country for questioning in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, Harry Fleischer, right, Detroit "Purple" gangster, surprised Detroit police by walking into the office of County Prosecutor Harry Toy, left, at Detroit, and giving himself up. Fleischer is to be held in connection with a triple gang murder in Detroit but police have indicated they will allow New Jersey authorities to question him in regard to the Lindbergh case.

Think Fleischer Is Not Kidnaper

DETROIT, June 10 —Search for the kidnapers and slayers of the little son of Col. Charles A Lindbergh appeared no nearer its goal today that before Harry Fleischer, leader of the notorious "Purple Gang," surrendered to the county prosecutor here voluntarily.

Authorities here, both federal and county, after grilling Fleischer for hours about the Lindbergh case, expressed the belief that the much hunted gangster knows nothing about it.

HELD FOR MURDER

Their interest in Fleischer, however, does not end with assurance that he had no part in the Lindbergh case. They will arraign him during the day on first degree murder charges, which also are denied by the gangster.

Although he says he can prove he was in jail at the time the crime was committed, Fleischer is charged with the slaying of Hymie Paul, Joseph Lebovitz and Joseph Sutker They were mowed down by gangsters bullets in alcohol warfare here on September 16, last.

Three of Fleischer's pals, Ray Bernstein, Irving Milberg and Harry Keywell, are serving life sentences in Marquette prison for conviction on similar charges. Fleischer's attorney, Edward Kennedy, claims they were convicted on prejured testimony and hopes to obtain a new trial for them.

Prosecutor Harry S Toy announced Fleischer's arraignment might be delayed until tomorrow so all available witnesses to the massacre of the "Little Navy" gang will have a chance to view him

A search has been instituted for Solly Levine, the witness whose testimony convicted the three "Purple" gangsters and without whose testimony Toy admitted the state has little hope of convicting the ring leader. Levine later repudiated his testimony, but the prosecutor alleged he did so through fear of the gang.

The Lindbergh angle will be investigated thoroughly by New Jersey authorities enroute here from Trenton and Newark. Prosecutor Toy had promised them full cooperation.

DENIES JOURNEY

Thus far his interrogators have been unable to learn from Fleischer where he remained in hiding during one of the greatest manhunts on record He said he had not been in Mexico, Canada or Florida

8-INCH MAIN PULLS APART EAST OF CITY

Expansion, Contraction of Exposed Line Causes Accident Thursday Eve

NO ILL EFFECTS

Workmen Busy Throughout Entire Night

A serious mishap in which the city's supply of natural gas was shutoff for 12 hours-from 8:15 p. m. Thursday to 8:20 a. m. Friday-caused no serious damage here, it was revealed today.

The 8-inch gas main located opposite Knight's Woods on the Lancaster-pk, east of this city, pulled apart Thursday evening. The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. has been forced to move its mains from the Lancaster-pk to the side of the road with a paving project now underway.

A new 8-inch line is being installed on a new right-of-way obtained by the gas company and the fact that the old line was exposed to the sun through the greater part of the day caused the accident. Expansion and contraction of the line caused the main to pull apart at a coupling.

CALLS EMPLOYEE

Lester H. Coate, Northridge-rd, was probably the first person to observe what had happened. He immediately notified Even Merriman, W. Main-st, gas company employee, who rushed to the gate east of the city and shutoff the line [illegible] to the city. The speed with which Merriman answered the emergency saved Amanda and Stoutsville, villages served by the gas company, from also being without a supply of fuel. The mains to these two places were connected with another line, isolating Circleville alone.

First news of the accident was flashed to the city by the fire bell which rang 88.

WORKERS SUMMONED

Immediately George Foarst, local manager, called the company's crews from this city and from Sugar Grove to hurry to the scene in an effort to repair the break. He notified Edward Lepper, Chillicothe, division superintendent, and Mr. Lepper with workmen from that city hurried here. He in turn called Thomas H. Kerr of Columbus, one of the company's vice presidents, notifying him of the trouble and a crew of workmen from Columbus was sent here.

The employees of the gas company worked through the greater part of the night to repair the line so Circleville could have a supply for Friday morning.

Then came the most difficult job of all; to notify subscribers personally that the gas was off and to be certain that all taps were turned off until notification was made that the supply was ready for use. The company had men visit the home of every gas user in the city to be certain that all taps were closed. Then came the signal when the fire bell again rang 88 that the supply was again ready for use in Circleville.

NO ILL EFFECTS

No ill-effects of the unfortunate occurrence have been reported. It was feared that the city's bakeries would be unable to bake their products because of the lack of gas but word received Friday morning stated that they went right a head. The ovens had been properly heated and with huge bricks which hold their heat a long while being used, bread was baked as usual. The mechanical department of The Herald was thrown back almost three hours because gas is needed to melt lead to permit linotype machines to set type

Sarazen Almost Certain Champ

SANDWICH, England, June 10. Gene Sarazen, American pro- fessional setting a sensational pace in the British Open golf championship, continued his sub-par shooting today, clicking out a fine 70 in the first of today's two final rounds and virtually assuring himself of the title.

Gene had a three round total of 209, seven strokes under par. He began the day with a total of 139, three strokes ahead of the field, consequently his lead looked secure, to be threatened only by the most sensational playing on the part of one of those nearest him or a complete collapse on his own part during the afternoon.

Sarazen's card

Out 443, 534, 334, 33

In 444, 535, 354, 37, 70, 139, 209.

The American ace rested in a secure position after an outward nine of 33 strokes, three under fours, a round aided by a super putting form. His tee shots were superior to his sloppy ones of yesterday. He outdrove his partner from 30 to 40 yards on nearly every hole.

His 37 inward was evidence of a lost putting touch. On the twelfth green, after overshooting but recovering with a chip shot to within two yards of the hole, he missed the putt. He took three putts on the fifteenth.

Right here it was suggested Sarazen might blow up, but he played the next hole, a short one, in a steady three, took an inevitable five on the extremely difficult seventeenth and shot a steady four on the last hole to get his 70. He faced the afternoon round with plenty of shots in hand.

HACK WILSON GAME WINNER

Pudgy Outfielder Crashes In All Five Runs For Brooklyn Defeating Cubs.

NEW YORK, June 10.—On the perspiring pate of Hack Wilson there bloomed today a sprig of laurel, replacing the two cans tied to the pudgy outfielder last winter by the Chicago Cubs and St Louis Cardinals.

The Flatbush butchers threw an extra chunk of hver in with the chops, the politicians forgot about politics, even the muddy waters of the Gowanus canal sparkled and all Brooklyn beamed its approval as the tale of "Hack Wilson's revenge" was recounted.

For the former home run king showed himself to be a perfect artist in the drama enacted at Ebbets Field yesterday. With the bases full, he smacked his eleventh homer of the season against his former mates, the Cubs. And just to rub it in, Hackodemus drove in his team's fifth run as the Dodgers won, 5 to 2.

"Moving Van" Mungo outpitched Pat Malone of the Cubs and yielded only four hits, one of them a homer by Gabby Hartnett with one man on base.

It was quite a day for homers. Master Mel Ott of the Giants hit his tenth and eleventh round-trippers of the year, beating the Reds 3 to 2 and duplicating a feat performed earlier in the series. Jim Mooney held the Reds to four hits as they absorbed their eighth straight defeat.

The second-place Boston lost an opportunity to take the lead away from the Cubs when their young pitching star, Bobby Brown, suffered his first defeat of the year in losing a 2 to 1 duel to Jess Haines of the Cardinals. Hits by Martin, Frisch, Collins and Orsatti won for the champions.

A late rally gave Pittsburgh a 4 to 3 shade over the Phillies.

Juror Wanders Into Wrong Box; Accepted

Buffalo, N Y—The wrong juror walked into the wrong jury box here recently, but he got the job anyhow.

Loren G Roth of East Hamburg was wandering through the Supreme court corridors looking for the jury drawing part. He had received a summons for jury duty.

Meanwhile, a juryman was missing at a $5,000 damage suit being tried in part eight.

"Are you by any chance looking for part eight," asked a deputy.

"I guess so," said Roth.

He was led to part eight and seated in the place of the missing juryman. The trial commenced. Then after a while Roth stood up.

"I guess," he said "that I'm listening to the wrong trial or something," he explained.

Lawyers went into a huddle with Justice Hinkley.

It was decided that Roth was acceptable to both parties. He was duly sworn and seated.

The trial went on.

It would be great if some people talked as well as they do loud.

TOWNSHIP TO PAY NURSES' COSTS BETTMAN DECLARES

Payment for the services of nurses incurred in caring for an indigent insane person temporarily maintained in a city hospital is a proper charge on the township in which that person had a legal settlement, Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L Crist has been notified in a written opinion received from Attorney General Gilbert Bettman.

The opinion grew out of a letter sent to Attorney General Bettman sometime ago by Prosecutor Crist in which the latter stated that Judge E A Brown had made a finding against a man on a lunacy inquest. The man was not expected to live at the time and was held temporarily in Berger Hospital where the services of two nurses were required to properly care for him.

The trustees of the township in which the man had a legal settlement were notified and assumed the payment of the city hospital bill but did not agree to pay the nurses. The question was whether the county or the township trustees should pay the nurses in this case.

Attorney General Bettman said that after studying the case he believed that in compliance with the terms of Section 3480-1 of the General Code which takes care of such cases the township trustees should pay the services of the nurse.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs H Price of Woodside, L I, writes "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one of 19 and the other 18. My friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen. If not joyfully satisfied, after the first bottle—money back.

PRESERVE IN SUMMER TO AID NEEDY IN WINTER IS NOW PLEA

"Preserve this summer to help the needy next winter," is a slogan that condenses into a few words a description of a movement which as it gains momentum appears to provide a practical means whereby housewives throughout the country can perform a real service in relieving distress among the unemployed.

Nothing more elaborate or complicated is involved than the putting up of preserves for distribution to the needy throughout the winter months. A great deal can be accomplished by individual women working in their own kitchens and distributing the results of their work to families with whose needs they are personally acquanted. An even more important contribution to relief, however, can be made by women willing to organize group preserving activities among their friends, or women's organizations of which they are members.

The cash expenditure required is small. Fruit and vegetables promise to be unusually cheap and abundant throughout the summer. Sugar is cheaper than it has been in all history. Another great point in favor of the movement is that preserves are of particular value in maintaining health and stamina. The fruit and green vegetables are the best possible sources of vitamins and mineral salts. The sugar content of the preserves is an unequalled sourse of energy. A supply of preserves put up by the conscientious housewives of the community can go far toward providing distressed families with a balanced diet that will go beyond the point of mercly sustaining life on a makeshift basis.

The procedure of organizing group preserving activities is an easy one. The woman willing to take the initiative can suggest to a number of her friends, perhaps to her bridge club, that one day a week they meet by turns in each others' kitchens, each contributing her share of the small amount of money required to purchase the necessary materials and supplies. Those who are officers or members of women's community or church organizations should find a hearty welcome for the suggestion that the organization as a whole devote a day a week to such a worthwhile activity. Many community centers and churches have kitchens where the preserving can be done, and a group of women working together will make the work and time fly with astonishing rapidity. Materials and supplies bought in the larger quantities required will be even cheaper than when purchased on a strictly retail basis.

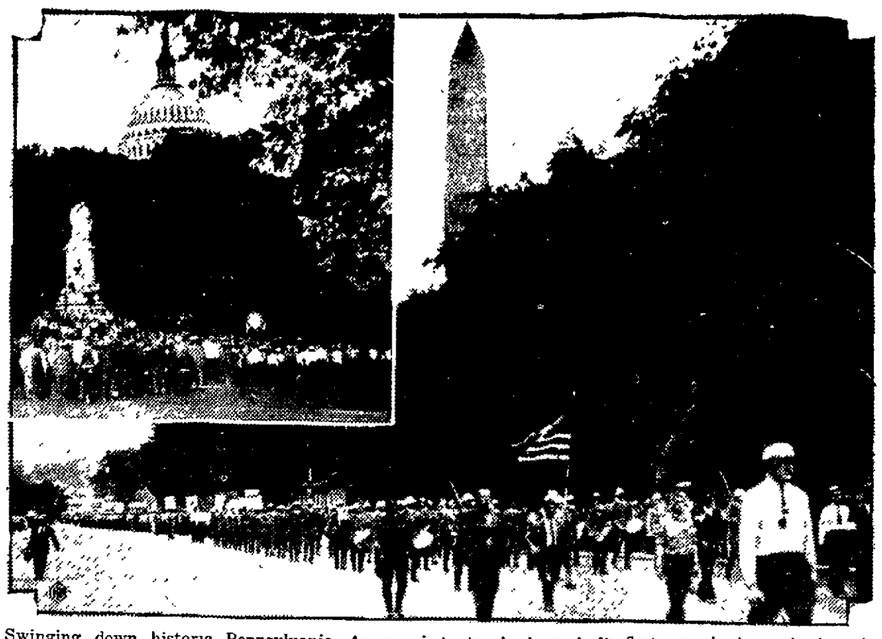
As "Bonus Army" Held First Parade



Swinging down historic Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington to the martial music of a steel-helmeted band, the "Bonus Army Expeditionary Force," in the capital to demand payment of veterans' bonus certificates, is shown in its first organized parade since the army started to concentrate in Washington. It is estimated that 8,000 men took part in the march past the Capitol and there was not the slightest disorder.

Speech Most Deceptive

FOUR CONVENTIONS HELP CAUSE OF S. S.

The holding of four great State regional conventions attended by thousands of church school leaders to participate in a great program of worship, music, instruction, conference and inspiration came as a fitting climax to a year of service unparalleled in the 72 years of history of The Ohio Council of Religious Education During the year new fields of service have been entered greatly extending and strengthening its program

Because the Council has consistently refused to enter controversial or partisan fields, having pursued the policy of confining its constructive service to the field of religious education it enters the new year with thousands of new friends throughout Ohio, who have come to understand the place of its program in producing a high grade citizenship.

A high official of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad stated that there were single great industries that could well afford to meet the entire budget of such a state organization on the basis of the prevention of property destruction because of its ministry to the childhood and youth.

After a searching official examination the General Secretary, Arthur T. Arnold, has been informed that The Ohio Council of Religious Education is again accredited by the International Council of Religious Education carrying with it the approval of 43 Protestant denominations, which recognize it as the sole responsible agency in this co-operative field

The needier fields of Ohio are being helped.

One hundred and ten Standard Community Training Schools for the training of pastors, teachers and church officers were promoted, organized and conducted in Ohio during the year. This places Ohio in the second place in America in this field.

The state still hold its place of vantage in the fields of Vacation and Week day Schools of Religion.

The first interdenominational training school for pastors just completed at Davton enrolled a capacity group of ministers from 2[illegible] Ohio counties.

Ohio's first Coaching Conference held in Columbus added 25 accredited teachers to the training school staff, who will teach courses for children's workers.

The Exception

SOME of the things printed in a newspaper are as disagreeable to the newspaper itself as to the sincere critics who would prefer to see less or none of the so-called "scandal" news. But in the performance of what it conceives to be its duty to print the news, the publications at times like the judge on the bench are confronted with unpleasant obligations.

There can be no justification for a newspaper that in cold-blood panders to the lower instincts of its readers or peddles filth and obscenity. Not many newspapers do this and none that do would admit it. It is a question whether the worst victim of such publicity is not the medium through which it reaches the public.

Much by way of earnest criticism has been said of newspaper publicity of crime. It has never been satisfactorily proved that news of crime begets crime. As a matter of fact the evidence is rather that there is no connection between them.

It is possible that some person may get a wrong slant on domestic relations by the news of divorce cases, but this slant will not prevail outside of shallow thinkers, for to all others it must be apparent that in most instances it is only the unusual that gives events the distinction of news.

If all domestic life were corrupt and decadent, there would be no news value in chronicling domestic misfortune. It is because the vast majority of marriages are successes that the overwhelming number of homes are wholesome, that the vast bulk of people are law abiding and good citizens that the exceptions assume news value.

No apology is made for newspaper indiscretions in the selection of printable news and still less for deliberate exploitation of unsavory events, but for those who deduce from publication of unpleasant things that the world is going to pot, there is the comforting thought that quite the reverse is true because in the main it is the exception and not the rule that has news value.

New Marriage Vow Needed

LIFE insurance has made antiquated our formal marriage vow. Before the inception of insurance on human lives it was generally thought that a man's duty to his wife and children ended with his natural life. Evidence of that thought is found in the bridegroom's vow to cherish and care for his wife "until death do us part." Today the majority of men feel that their responsibility to the family is greater after the death than during the life of the husband and father. They are meeting the responsibility with life insurance.

Professor S. S. Huebner, head of the commerce and insurance department of the University of Pennsylvania, would revise the "until death do us part" phrase of the marriage vow to read, "While and after both do live."

It does not seem that a man has done full duty by his family until he has cared for their worldly wants for both before and after his death. Life insurance is relatively a new idea and of only recent general acceptance. The insurance of material things is, however, an old idea.

Were it possible for every head of a family to put by a surplus of wealth for the emergency of death the modern form of life insurance would be unnecessary. Few men begin married life with estates of considerable intrinsic value and the number who leave widows and children with adequate estates is tragically small. The plan of issuing insurance in lives at stipulated annual premiums based on average mortality rates was conceived to establish decedent estates for that great army of men who begin married life with little more than the license fee, accumulate hardly more than a house before death and die with the assurance that the life insurance company will be a provident husband and father to the surviving widow and children.

Greatness

HUMAN qualities alone do not make greatness, in its true sense. The possession of real greatness comes from qualities of the divine which show forth in the demeanor of man. Greatness that is genuine is characterized by simplicity. He who is truly great does not put himself forward. Perfect poise, which manifests itself in speech and in action, is an outstanding mark of greatness. The world spontaneously volunteers admiration for the one who can remain unmoved by the storms of strife and passion which sways other men about him.

Candor and straightforward speaking are found in those who are really great. They have nothing to conceal, they have no deed to deceive. What they say comes from their hearts and may be depended upon. The great man is tolerant of the opinions of others; he is charitable toward their failings; he is genuinely sympathetic in their sorrow; he rejoices in their successes.

Such are some of the qualities of greatness, which are deeper and of more worth than many of the material symbols for which men are often more inclined to work toward. Real greatness consists in showing forth the image and likeness of God.

"THE LOVE TRAP"

SYNOPSIS

Pretty Mary Kennedy breaks her engagement to the elderly but wealthy sports promoter, Buck Landers when she falls in love with his young ward, Steve Moore. Landers kidnaps Steve and threatens to frame him unless Mary marries Landers. Mary flirts with Landers' henchman, Bat, to gain his confidence. She learns of Steve's whereabouts and goes there alone. In a dingy flat, Mary is confronted by two thugs who deny all knowledge of Steve. They hold her and phone Landers. Landers arrives and orders his men out. When Landers refuses to leave, Mary shoots at him, but misses. He flees. Steve confesses to Mary that he is engaged, but he loves her. Mary has misgivings when Steve plans a visit to Eileen Calvert, his fiancee, to explain the situation. Steve writes that he has not had an opportunity to speak with Eileen. Mary replies, pouring out her heart to him. She is waiting for a response when a telegram arrives. Bill Calvert, Eileen's brother, calls on Mary. Mary realizes his motive is to prevent her marriage. He suggests that she visit his home so Steve may see her and Eileen together and make his choice. Considering Bill's request unfair, Mary flees from him.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

BILL CALVERT, in surprise, had watched Mary flee from him, but before she had gone a block he followed her, his face serious and perplexed. And now he caught up with her as she sat huddled and disconsolate on the stoop. He stood there some time before she was aware of his presence.

"Well, I'm afraid I've made you hate me," he said awkwardly.

"I don't hate you. I suppose it's right for you to stand up for your sister, and try to get Steve back for her——"

"If it's wrong for her to have Steve, then I'm against her having him," he returned pacifically. "And really you're wrong about something else; I didn't want to get you up there to show you in a poor light beside Eileen. As a matter of fact, you could stand up beside any girl without suffering. But if I tried to put over on you a scheme that you thought I did, why, I ought to be taken out and shot! Of course, I can see that it looked like a low-down deal to you—but it wasn't meant that way. I want you to believe me, Miss Kennedy."

"It doesn't matter," she said. "I'm not in a mood for understanding anything at all tonight."

"You don't realize what a delicate position I am in," Bill Calvert went on earnestly. "Everything I said to you tonight was well meant. Of course, I'll admit now that I didn't see things—in the light you put them. Perhaps you are right that you might appear to some disadvantage in Eileen's home. But it was all my own idea—not Eileen's. I simply thought it was a sporting sort of notion, but I didn't think far enough ahead to get your angle."

"Oh, I don't think you actually meant to be unfair," she told him miserably. "But it would have given your sister a beautiful chance to show me up."

"Not at all," he protested. "You see, you didn't let me finish everything I started to say. I think you wouldn't be at any particular disadvantage at all because—because I don't think Steve would notice such matters very much. The truth is—Steve keeps asking for you all the time. He—" Bill stopped, a frown furrowed his brow.

"Is there anything—the matter?" she asked with swift poignance.

"There is nothing seriously the matter," he assured, carefully, "I didn't want to alarm you, but Steve has had an accident. We were out riding and he was thrown from a horse. His neck might have been broken, but it wasn't. He will have to stay in bed for a while and keep very quiet—but he's going to pull through."

"You're not telling me the truth—he may be dying!" she sprang to her feet, clutching at Bill's arm. "Don't lie to me!"

"Don't get excited." He put his hand on her shoulder and forced her to sit down again on the stoop. "It was a close call but he is getting along fine. If I had not been sure of that—how could I have talked to you about his engagement, and so forth? Perhaps I was a fool, at that, to get into such deep water. But, whether or not, I must take you back home with me. Steve wants you, and I promised to bring you."

"Yes, yes! I must go to him!" She stared at Bill Calvert with wild eyes, but she was not seeing him at all. The picture in her mind showed only Steve bandaged and pale on a bed. That was why he had not written! Ah, he wanted her! In his hours of helplessness he still loved! What help, what comfort, could Eileen bring to him at a time like this?

"I left my car in a garage and I'll bring it right around," Bill said. "Can you start right away?"

"As soon as I can pack—in fifteen minutes," she told him vibrantly. "I'll meet you right here."

She flew up the stairs. Trembling with haste, she packed two bags. Her sister, her father, were dumbfounded at her bewildering activity.

"I'm going away to spend some time with some friends," she told them with rapid indifference. "Don't worry about me—I'll be all right, darlings. I'm not going for pleasure—somebody is sick and needs my help. Don't ask questions!" She stopped her ears against their importunities. They dared not even follow her down the stairs.

In Bill Calvert's long gray roadster, she left the lights of the city speedily behind, and the machine settled down for its swift flight through the night . . .

It was near midnight when Mary and Bill Calvert reached the house in the Catskills. On the way she lost track of direction and distance; the rush of night against her face cooled her fevered cheeks, and lifted little strands of the golden hair. Suspense, uncertainty as to Steve's condition, kept a nervousness spiralling in her breast. A revolving endlessness of haste to be with him . . . yet, in the background, less important things clamored for attention, too.

There was some feminine anxiety in the matter of clothes, but the few things she possessed were well-chosen and becoming. The very simplicity of her apparel gave it a kind of smartness. But now, since she knew Steve had sent for her—that he wanted her above Eileen—she was scarcely concerned with the impression she would make with these rich people.

The freshness of the country air was strange and sweet; the house, as she alighted from the car, was larger than she had expected; it was long and white, built of stone and wood and set in the midst of a green lawn that resembled a park with its trees and shrubbery. She entered a wide hall with Bill, and a servant took her bags. On either side she glimpsed spacious rooms. The luxury of thick rugs and mahogany and rich shaded lamps.

A tall woman with a round face like Bill's, and dark friendly eyes under dignified gray hair, came down the broad steps into the hall. Her smile was faintly troubled, but when she spoke her voice was mellow—imperturbably hospitable.

"Mother, this is Miss Kennedy," Bill said, and Mrs. Calvert came to her and took her hand. Both of them said, "How do you do?"

"She'll want to see Steve right away—if it's all right," Bill said. "I reckon it will be all right—won't it, if he's not asleep?"

"I think so, but I'll ask the nurse to make sure," Mrs. Calvert said in her pleasantly poised voice. "Perhaps, though, we had better show Miss Kennedy her room first."

They all went up the stairs, preceded by the servant who carried Mary's bags into a bedroom in which a single dim light showed a decorative scheme of soft green and orchid, with pastel draperies and light-painted furniture. Another open door showed a bathroom of gleaming tile, blue curtains, tinted and glowing porcelain.

"Please try to feel thoroughly at home in this house," Mrs. Calvert told her. "You'll be with us quite some time I hope, and if Bill doesn't look after you properly, you just come and tell his mother. Probably, though, your trouble will be to get rid of him. He's likely to make a pest of himself where there's a pretty girl around."

Mrs. Calvert smiled, and Mary felt a sudden affection for this amiable lady. Bill grinned at his mother's jest.

"Mother's just kidding you—I'm a woman hater myself," he said. "Any way, Miss Kennedy won't be interested in me!"

Presently, with the nurse's permission, Mary was led to the room where Steve was an invalid. It was at a corner of the house with windows on two sides, furnished in mahogany and chintz with a wide soft rug; an adjoining bath glimmered opulently with its colored tiles. A white clad nurse, severe and middle-aged — a Mrs. Deal — looked upon Mary with a hostile eye.

"Not more than five minutes, at the most. I'll be back when the time is up."

Primly, she marched away.

Steve's face was whiter than Mary had ever seen it before. His eyes were dazed, tired. There was a bandage around his forehead and over his hair, like a white cap.

"Mary!" The face turned on the pillow toward her. He might have been dreaming from his tone. "What are you doing here?"

She closed the door behind her then took a chair beside the bed, but she made no move to touch him. He seemed very ill.

"I came to be with you, Steve darling," she succeeded in making her voice calm, matter-of-fact. It would not do to show emotion and get him excited, although her own heartache and sympathy stifled her; her fingers twined together, but she kept them out of his sight.

"I wanted you." His voice was tired, and the gray eyes searched her face. "I got a bad bump, Mary, but I'll be all right. I'm better already, just because you're here."

There was a flicker of a smile on his colorless lips; he put a hand out of the cover, and she pressed it gently.

"You mustn't talk too much," she told him. "And you mustn't worry, either. I'll be right here with you, darling."

The Daily Horoscope

Friday, June 10, 1932

This may prove to be a most unsatisfactory day for people who are lacking in emotional control. The indications point to grave dangers to health financial affairs, domestic and social relations, coming from unrestrained imagination. It is certainly not a day to indulge in dreams and idle fancies.

This caution is especially needed by people born near the 24th and 25th of February and the 28th and 29th of August. These folks are liable to be seriously involved unless they guard against deception of this type.

Many strange and fantastic notions may be spread abroad today. And at this most critical epoch in our national life it behooves everyone to exercise their judgment. At The Grand

"Maker of Men," the Columbia picture showing at the Grand Theater, stars Jack Holt in the role of a college athletic coach—a builder of American youth—and features Richard Cromwell as his son.

A father and son drama, the story reveales the struggle of the boy to reconcile his own fears with his father's ambition to make a great athlete of him. He does not share his father's love of sport. To him it is brutal play with a maimed body the reward for empty glory. He can't take physical punishment and he doesn't see why he should be called "yellow" because he doesn't want his body tortured.

Will he ever make his father understand the terror that paralyzes him? Will he be a craven all his life, or will he find his manhood in the depths of despair by which his failure plunges him? These are some of the interesting questions put forth and answered in "Maker of Men," an original story written especially for the new team of Jack Holt and Richard Cromwell by Howard J. Green and Edward Sedwick, the latter director of the picture.

Joan Marsh, of the newest group known as Baby Stars, plays the feminine lead. Walter Catlett and Paul Hurst provide comedy. Robert Alden and John Wayne are a couple of husky collegians and Natalie Moorehead, Richard Tucker and Sidney Bracy have prominent roles.

Don't Take Anything for Granted If Stomach Gives Constant Trouble

Gastritis May Arise From Any One of Many Causes, and When It Becomes Chronic It Is Likely to Lead to Some Very Serious Ailment.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE is a group of stomach disturbances that are decidedly uncomfortable, and gastritis, meaning inflammation of the wall of the stomach, is the term used to designate these conditions which are often confused with heartburn, indigestion, hyperacidity and other gastric disturbances.

Acute gastritis is a sudden inflammation of the lining of the stomach caused by chemical or mechanical irritation. It may be produced by swallowing coal and uncooked foods, by faulty digestion, or by excessive use of alcohol. It is frequently encountered in such disorders as influenza, pneumonia, measles and typhoid fever. In these cases the irritation is produced by the toxins or poisons found in the germs.

As a rule, acute gastritis readily responds to treatment, but unfortunately chronic gastritis is of a more serious nature and requires careful and prolonged treatment. The chronic form may be the result of continued wrong habits of eating. Improper chewing of food, hasty eating, excessive use of condiments, fried and greasy food, or alcohol, over a long period of time may produce chronic gastritis.

The condition may be the result of a severe heart, lung, or liver disorder, or it may be caused by an infection somewhere in the body, as in the tonsils, throat, nasal sinuses, gall bladder or appendix, from which, it is believed, infection is carried to the stomach by the blood stream, or it may be swallowed with the food.

In chronic gastritis inflammation of the mucous membrane or lining of the stomach causes increased secretion of mucus, which aids in protecting the inflamed membrane. If the inflammation continues there is a decrease of hydrochloric acid and pepsin in the stomach—substances essential for proper gastric digestion—and faulty intestinal digestion and many severe ailments follow.

If you suffer from digestive disturbances, consult your physician, and by complete physical examination let him determine whether you have gastritis, either acute or chronic. Special laboratory examination of the contents of the stomach may be necessary, or an X-ray picture of the stomach and intestines.

Diet is important in treating gastritis. Food, that are rich in fat, fried or greasy should be avoided, and butter used only in small amounts. Any food known to cause digestive disturbance should be shunned. Water should be consumed at each meal, and at least six to eight glasses of water daily between meals.

Avoid excessive eating. It is best to eat frequently rather than to overeat at one meal. Food should be slowly and thoroughly chewed. Avoid peppers, spices and condiments. Follow your doctor's diet instructions.

HIS HEALTH IMPROVED 40%

After Use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

If you are constipated, read this letter which Mr. Murray had attested by Notary Public:

"Two months ago I commenced using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to relieve constipation. I am in better health today than I have been in years, due to the use of your wonderful bran. My bowels move regularly, and my general health has improved 40%." —George A. Murray, 288 K Street, South Boston, Mass.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to correct common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

How much better to use ALL-BRAN than to abuse your system with pills and drugs—often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation—in serious cases, with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NEW TREATMENT IS SEEN FOR ANEMIA

Experiments Being Watched by Medical Men.

Cincinnati.—New light has been thrown upon the cause and treatment of pernicious anemia by members of the staff of the college of medicine, University of Cincinnati, through investigations whose preliminary results were announced at the university.

Studies along this line have been carried out by Dr. Roger S. Morris, professor of internal medicine, and his associates. They emphasize that it is still in an experimental stage.

As a result of these observations a new treatment for pernicious anemia may be developed, the announcement stated. Medical authorities throughout the country are said to be watching the work with interest.

Findings will be reported by Doctor Morris in a paper to be presented before the Association of American Physicians, meeting at Atlantic City. Early stages of the work have been outlined in the Cincinnati Journal of Medicine and the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Explained in nontechnical terms the medical college experiments show that when a concentrated solution of normal human gastric juice is given by intramuscular injection to anemia patients almost immediate improvement sets in.

Results are manifested by an increase in the number of red blood cells and hemoglobin, the coloring matter of the blood. There is also an increase in strength, gain in weight, and marked improvement in the general condition of the patient.

What effect it may produce on the spinal cord changes, frequently present in this disease, has not yet been determined The investigation is expected to continue at least two years. The observations indicate a substance present in the gastric juice of normal individuals which tends to keep the red blood cells and hemoglobin at a normal level through stimulation of the bone marrow.

Apparently this substance is absent in cases of pernicious anemia. The lack of it probably accounts for the development of the anemia, the investigators believe.

The university scientists have named this substance "addisin," after Thomas Addisin, who described pernicious anemia in the first half of the Nineteenth century.

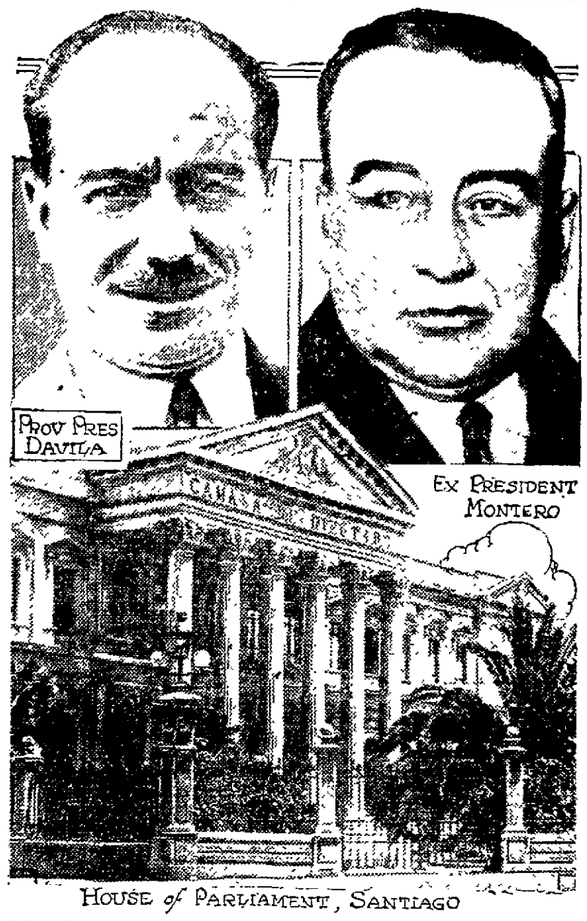
Anxiety in United States and Britain Despite Assurances of Davila's Revolutionary Junta. Washington Reserving Decision on Recognition.



HOUSE of PARLIAMENT, SANTIAGO

Although the revolutionary junta which Carlos Davila recently installed in Chile to take the place of President Juan Esteban Montero's government has as yet made no move towards the confiscation of foreign property in the country, American and British concerns, who are the principal stakeholders in Chilean industries, are anxiously watching the progress of events in the new regime. Observers in touch with Chilean affairs at Washington are inclined to accept with reserve reports that Davila, a former ambassador to the U. S., would embark upon a program that would stamp Chile as communistic.

REPEAL PLANK

California, are not having much luck in selling to the state leaders the Hoover-approved plank which merely calls for resubmission on a "repeal, retention of revision" basis. The state leaders are talking repeal only, with no strings attached.

The drys are in despair. Represented here by Senator Simeon D Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee until a successor is chosen next week, and by Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, the eloquent dry portia of the 1928 campaign, the drys gloomily conceded that the tide is running against them. For publication they will not be quoted, privately they are bemoaning what they call the "opportunism" of the convention leaders.

Entirely too many people try to get the upper hand by dealing from the bottom.

Conspiracy For Dictatorship Aired Today

WASHINGTON, June 10.— A "conspiracy" to set up a dictatorship in Washington after Congress adjourns was charged today by James A. Simpson of Oklahoma, president of the National Farmers Union.

The plot was disclosed at a mysterious secret meeting to which he was invited in a fashionable local hotel last night, Simpson said.

Simpson who is anxious to keep Congress in session said the proposed dictatorship would be accomplished by a presidential order restoring the wartime council of defense. Simpson said:

"I was invited to meet a group of men whom I did not know and the proposal was put to me. I indignantly refused to be a party to it and started a "fussing" match.

"They asked me to go to the White House today to place the plan before President Hoover. The idea is to get Congress out of the way as soon as possible."

Business Women Hostesses To 32 Girl Graduates Here

One of the outstanding events of the early summer was the Business and Professional Women's banquet held in the St. Philip's Episcopal Parish house, Thursday evening, for 32 girl graduates of the local high school, an annual affair always greatly anticipated by the girls and club women.

Dr. Anne Marting of Ironton, recently elected vice president of the Ohio Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was the speaker and with her highly pleasing personality won the hearts of everyone present.

In her very charming manner, she told what women had accomplished in the world and what wonderful opportunities are open to the girls who are starting out on their careers, if they are ambitious In part she said that business and professional women in the world were in 532 occupations out of 536 known ones. The women have made a great deal of progress in the business world in the last ten years and newer fields are being opened to them more and more. Women are learning mechanics and are also connected with the railroads, one having a woman for its president. Quite a number are graduating with M. D. degrees and architecture is being taken up by the women.

She stated that higher education was becoming more necessary and that brains are needed more than ever before to help the country out of its great present day difficulties. Success can be reached only by single steps.

She believes there is a great deal in life if one just thinks so and that everyone should get out of life as much as possible In closing her splendid talk. Dr. Marting gave a very suitable axiom, "Do all you can as you go along, life is a one way street and you're not coming back."

Miss Helen Rowe, president of the local club, served as toastmistress and announced the various numbers on the program.

The senior girls were welcomed by Miss Esther Drum and Miss Dorothy Riegel gave the response.

A group of Irish songs was rendered by Miss Johnda Tootle in her pleasing soprano voice. She sang "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" and "Danny Boy" and was accompanied at the piano by Miss Dorothy Glick

The club quintet, composed of Mrs. W. E Fitzpatrick, Mrs Mary Morris, Miss Elizabeth Roundhouse, Miss Veronica Kuhns and Miss Blanche Valentine, accompanied by Mrs. George Bentley entertained with two selections: "Lillies Sweet and Daffodils" and "Bells of St. Mary's."

A clever welcome verse for the graduates written by Miss Charlotte McEwing, was sung by the club women to the tune of "Little Gypsy Sweetheart"

Preceding the dinner at 6 30 o'clock, Miss Elma Rains, president-elect, read the collect and parodies were sung by the entire group before and during the serving of the dinner courses Miss Elizabeth Roundhouse and Mrs W E Fitzpatrick were piano accompanists.

A color scheme of red, white and blue was used in the decorations of the room Large baskets of peonies, roses and gentians were artistically arranged along the window ledges and the stage. A portrait of Washington centered the stage.

The long tables, lighted with white tapers, were beautiful in the patriotic colors with a dainty corsage of red, white and blue flowers as a favor for each guest Centerpieces of red and white roses and gentians arranged in bowls were most attractive.

Dr. Marting and her mother of Ironton and Mrs Allie Clark and Mrs. Lena Sheeter of Wilmington were out-of-town guests.

Responsible for the lovely banquet was Miss Minnie Palm, general chairman and her committee Miss Sallie Lynch, Mrs. Anna Chandler, Miss Mary Howard, Miss Marie Robertson, Miss Esther Drum, Miss Frances Jones, Miss Elizabeth Roundhouse and Miss Veronica Kuhns. The delicious three course dinner was served by the Ladies Guild of the St. Philip's church.
